This modeled censer fragment is made of a bright orange paste with lots of white and some micaceous inclusions. The applied design is an arm, bent at the elbow. There is an incised circle at the shoulder and one on the elbow 1.5 cm in diameter. They look kind of like ant hills. The hand has three incisions .4 cm wide and 1.6 cm long to separate the hand into fingers. There is a ridge on the fragment body above the hand. To the left of the arm is a right angle incised. There are two incised lines below the arm. There is no slip, paint, or fire clouding.
